CHRISTOPHER MAKOS

Celebrates the Release of

EXHIBITIONISM

Join Christopher Makos on Thursday, January 27, 2005, from 6-9PM to celebrate the release of his newest collection of photography. In this startling and original collaboration, Exhibitionism marks the genius of two of the world's most stylish and impeccable artists -- Christopher Makos and Calvin Klein - - convening to create a daringly evocative and intimately sensual portraiture of the male form.

Featuring over 175 photographs, ranging from brilliantly crisp black-and-whites to luscious four-colors to softly muted sepia-tones, Exhibitionism emerged out of a provocative exhibition staged by Makos at the Calvin Klein flagship store in New York in 2001. Photo-edited by Klein (his first publishing endeavor of any kind), the book contains dazzling pairings of Makos' still-life abstractions placed alongside male subjects. The result is a completely unique, visually stunning and thought-provoking examination of the human male in its individual and universal form.
